DELAWARE AREA
CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

OUR VISION

The Delaware Area Chamber of Commerce shall be the region's business leader and community voice.

OUR MISSION

The Chamber serves as the visionary leader for programs and services benefiting our members by promoting and advocating a favorable business climate, quality of life and orderly growth and development of the Delaware area community.

The Delaware Area Chamber of Commerce welcomes you to Delaware County, Ohio! Within these pages you'll encounter the vibrant, unique community we are. You'll discover a bedroom community feel among our residents and yet a sophisticated, global approach to art, education, health care and business. This guide is also a source of the best our business community has to offer – our chamber members. Use it to find the products and services you need at home and in your business.

A chamber of commerce is a private business organization that serves as a vehicle through which the business and professional community are organized to work together to define and solve community and economic development issues as well as network and support each other. In 2018 the Chamber received its second consecutive five year 4-Star Accreditation from the US Chamber of Commerce. This status puts our chamber in the top 3% of chambers in the country and we're very proud of our organization and its values.

The chamber is loyal to all its members. They represent large and small businesses; retail, service, home-based, manufacturing, public service, education and organizations. As the community's search engine, tourists, residents and other businesses look first to the chamber of commerce for everything from local maps to commercial development.

No one group or individual member could do all that chambers of commerce do. We're proud of how the chamber's mission and community partnerships enhance opportunities for business and quality of life for everyone. And we're proud of the community in which we live, do business and serve. We know you'll love Delaware. Get to know us and get to know the chamber.

It's Good for Business!

COMMUNITY CHARACTER

Located north of Columbus, Delaware County has long been recognized as a great place to call home. The county's median household income is $100,229; the average age of its nearly 205,000 residents is 39 years old. Sixty percent of its residents hold an associate's degree or higher and the home-ownership rate is just shy of 82%.

As the county seat, the City of Delaware is an energetic one whose downtown benefits from the alignment of a dedicated set of very involved citizens and municipal officials with policies and a posture favorable to the historic district. Delaware appreciates its 200-plus years of history, but also boasts a "funky" side, evidenced by an eclectic mix of retail shopping and dining outlets and cultural offerings that range from music and art to farmers' markets.

As it is with its neighbors the city of Sunbury and the City of Powell, Delaware is a defining element because it is a fairly intact historic business district, parts of which have been placed on the National Register of Historic Places. Contemporary use of historic buildings makes the downtown an attractive place to work, shop and visit. Restored 19th century commercial properties are adapted for today's businesses. The tree-lined sidewalks and activities draw people downtown and give Delaware, Sunbury and Powell a feeling of having a center. Maintaining the historic nature of downtown and adjacent neighborhoods is a priority for these communities to help maintain the historic integrity of the district.

Whether Sunbury, Galena, Powell or Delaware, you'll find a comfortable atmosphere of a one-of-a-kind gathering place. Go there for the music and a beverage with friends. The place just fits like a favorite old sweater, and everyone knows the owner. Consider an intangible like the spirit that builds a mosaic on the back outside wall of an IPA brewery and restaurant in Downtown Delaware. Admirers tell one another, "You have to see it!" and the best time is when the afternoon sun ricochets off the mirrors and brings the wall alive.

How does Delaware County have fun? How do people "play" together? Look at the big events in the community and find the Little Brown Jug harness race, the Delaware County Fair, the All-Horse Parade and Independence Day Concert by the Central Ohio Symphony. Taste of Powell, the Christmas Parade in Sunbury - these are hometown events and activities where neighbor meets neighbor. The MainStreet Delaware organization contributes to the city's character by sponsoring events like the farmer's market and the First Fridays that bring people downtown, contributing to this intangible of community character. And 2016 marked the first year that the City of Delaware and national IRONMAN partnered to hold a half-triathlon. A quintessential American university town, Delaware offers a beautiful course in a quaint location for the 70.3 event and attracts over 2500 athletes from around the country.

Other county priorities reflect its character. Bikeways connect people, neighborhoods, services and businesses. Both Powell and Delaware boast recreation centers/YMCA that promote a healthy community and help keep recreation dollars in the community. Location of small parks within walking distance of most neighborhoods shows the area's recognition of the need for places to relax and play close to home with friends and neighbors. In the Berkshire Community Park stands a "Book Nook", offering an "honor system" of "take a book, leave a book". All the charm and neighborhood feel in a semi-rural, sophisticated community.

The unincorporated areas in Delaware County add an extra dimension to its character as well. Recognized as one of America's first forms of government, townships have generally been credited with being able to accomplish more with fewer tax dollars than any other form of government.

Liberty Township covers over 33 square miles with 275 acres of parkland in one of the fastest growing counties in the nation. The appeal of Liberty Township is its charming semi-rural location nestled between the scenic Olentangy and Scioto Rivers. The Olentangy Heritage Corridor, an Ohio Scenic Byway, spans 10.5 miles of State Route 315 and follows the ancient Indian trails of the Olentangy River. State Route 315 is documented as the first road commissioned in Delaware County in August of 1808, and it remains a significant north-south arterial to present day. Liberty Township is also home to the Columbus Zoo & Aquarium which serves as one of central Ohio's most popular family attractions and hosts more than two million visitors annually.

To the east of Liberty Township is Orange Township, with a population of nearly 30,000. At first glance Orange Township is a bedroom community, but closer inspection delivers a sophisticated, well educated, family-centered population that puts measured growth and amenities in the forefront. With a strong commercial base, and a growing industrial area, Orange Township continues to position itself as a thriving community within Delaware County.

Orange Township is also the host-community of a New Urbanism development project that broke ground in 2016. The Evans Farm Development is a 1200-acre community based on the principles of walkability, interconnecting streets and mixed housing styles; quality architecture with an urban design coupled with the traditional neighborhood structure. The plan promotes green transportation and living, encourages sustainability, and focuses heavily on the quality of life. More than just a vision, Evans Farm seeks to be an experience of living that includes walkable front porch neighborhoods designed to bring people together, and bringing people together is what this township is all about.

Evans Farms also includes neighboring Berlin Township which is a mixture of commercial, farm and residential properties. With a total area of approximately 22.5 square miles, Berlin Township boasts Alum Creek Lake and State Park, a popular recreational area. Their population of approximately 6500 residents has been gradually increasing each year due to the popularity of the area.

Berkshire Township is the third oldest township in the county. Founded in 1806, Berkshire has the only other exit off I-71 in Delaware County, besides the Polaris/Gemini exit. This access to Ohio's main north-south interstate has left Berkshire poised for enormous growth, which the township has embraced with excitement, careful planning, and a toolbox of financial and zoning tools designed to facilitate the best use of resources. Development at this exit was spearheaded by the Northstar Community, an 1800 total acre master-planned project with homes, condos, green space for parks and paths, and sites for schools.. The oldest continuously operating Harley-Davidson dealership in America and Tanger Outlet Mall featuring more than 70 national retailers round out the eclectic retail offerings of Berkshire Township.

Newcomers adjust quickly to the comfortable lifestyle within the county. The fast pace of business during the work day can be balanced by activities with a hometown feel. Downtown Delaware, Sunbury and Powell have something for everyone. Make global deals during the day then "kick back" to enjoy the Little Brown Jug, or wander through the Farmer's Market to sample local produce and products or attend the annual Taste of Powell that integrates one of the biggest social events of the season with samples of food from throughout the county.

The blend of community characteristics makes Delaware County a great place to work, to live, and to raise a family. The result is vibrant downtowns and communities where business, university, residents and arts create a synergy defining Delaware County's personality.

ARTS & CULTURE

Boardman Arts Park, Delaware

Delaware County is a study in contrasts. The communities appreciate their history, blending old and new by preserving and rehabilitating historic buildings for reuse. Local culture means enjoying a performance of music, art or theater. Try sampling the agricultural heritage at the Delaware County Fair, home of the Little Brown Jug, the premier pacing classic for three-year-old harness racing. That's contrast!

Delaware culture is rich with the Central Ohio Symphony; dance, theater and art programs through Ohio Wesleyan University and arts education from Drama Kids of North Columbus. Popular traditions related to the Delaware County Fair, the All-Horse Parade, the Little Brown Jug, the Taste of Powell and the ever popular Christmas Parade in Sunbury say something about the roots of Delaware's values and the desire to know your neighbor.

A community's commitment to arts begins with its schools that have long supported the arts at an impressive level. Area high schools feature marching band, full orchestra, jazz band and string chamber orchestra. Strings instruction begins in the fourth grade. The high school students who make up the string quartet are in demand at company events and weddings. Students showcase vocal talents in choirs, including a competition symphonic choir. Singers and musicians perform around the county and are especially in demand at holidays and with the Central Ohio Symphony.

Founded in 1973 when only three restaurants called Downtown Delaware their home, the annual arts festival was formed by local volunteers as a way to showcase local artists. The Delaware Arts Festival, now in its 48th year, attracts artists from Maine to California and visitors from Ohio and surrounding states. The festival is still an all-volunteer event and all proceeds have always gone towards scholarship grants to students in the county who are pursuing a degree in the arts.

Ohio Wesleyan University (OWU) is a small liberal arts university with a strong international presence. More than ten percent of its enrollment comes from outside the US and all students are encouraged to participate in at least one international experience during their tenure at OWU. The university is only steps from Downtown Delaware, and this advantageous location offers cultural and educational opportunities for students, businesses and the community. For example, the Central Ohio Symphony uses the university's Gray Chapel as its performance venue. Phillips Glen, site of countless OWU graduations, is the setting for the symphony's annual Fourth of July concert, attended by thousands of music lovers from the Central Ohio area.

OWU's Richard M. Ross Art Museum, where admission is always free, provides exhibitions of distinctive quality and content from the nation's most notable artists and displays portions of the university's extensive private collection. In addition, an annual juried exhibit spotlights work by senior fine arts majors and a biennial art show features university professors who are also practicing studio artists.

University theater and dance productions, from musicals to experimental theatre to Shakespeare, are part of the curriculum for students in these majors and are open to the public. The OWU music program features vocal and instrumental artists, ensembles ranging from the Park Avenue Jazz Ensemble to the Wind Ensemble and the OWU Chamber Orchestra, and vocal music performances by the Choral Art Society, Opera Theatre and other groups. An annual Performing Arts Series brings outstanding musicians and performance artists to campus for the enjoyment of the entire Delaware community.

The Central Ohio Symphony was founded in 1978. Its home is Ohio Wesleyan University's Gray Chapel with its remarkable acoustics. As an unofficial cultural ambassador for the city and county of Delaware, the symphony takes pride in its contribution to a strong local economy, drawing patrons and fans from near and far to Delaware. Its role might be described as a "bridge" between the community and the University. Patrons eat, shop and walk around campus and Downtown Delaware establishments before and after concerts. Anchored on Winter Street in its downtown office "Symphony Source," the location provides access for the community with locality and extended office hours.

Perkins Observatory, facilitated by Preservation Parks of Delaware County, is a research facility that has been in continuous use since its completion in 1931. It is open to the public with programs most Friday nights and special events such as the "Celebration of the Sun."

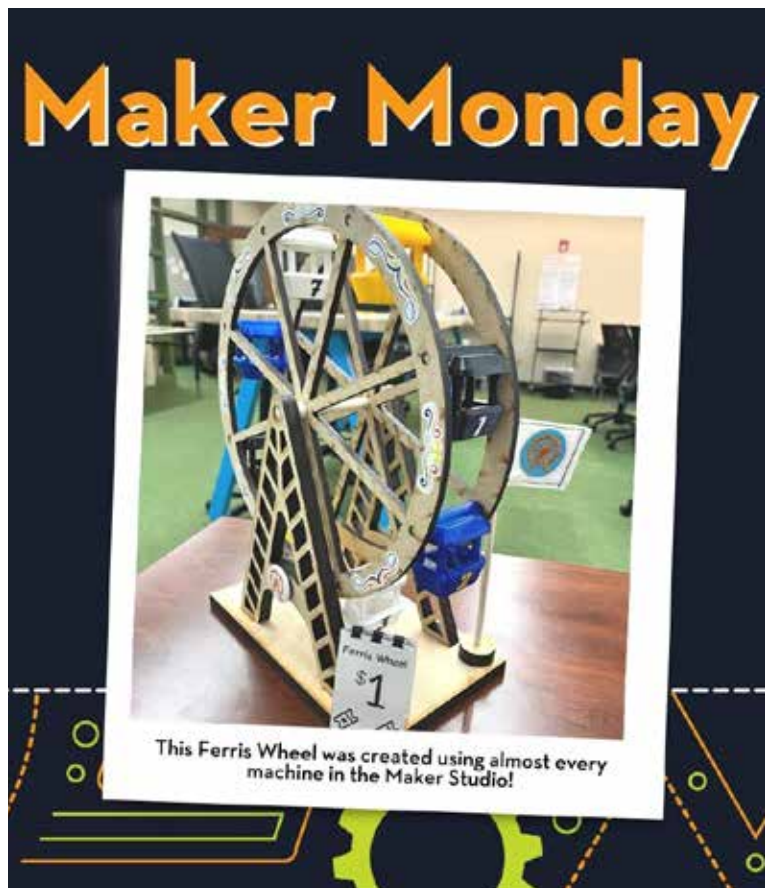

With four locations, the Delaware County District Library offers convenience, cutting edge technology and resources for patrons of all ages. From the 1,000 square foot neighborhood branch in rural Ostrander to the 32,000 plus square feet of the LEEDS certified Orange Branch that was honored with an armful of architectural awards from around the nation, the DCDL is the standard bearer of library systems.

The Little Brown Jug has developed into the leading pacing classic for three-year-old horses since its inception in 1937. "The Jug" is the anchor in the Triple Crown of Pacing. Another unique cultural event held the week before the Delaware County Fair is the All-Horse Parade. The parade includes 500 horses, ponies and mules as individual entries and leading buggies, coaches and multiple-hitch wagons. It is recognized as one of the largest non-motorized parades in the country.

The cultural arts in Delaware County include modern dance, theater and art exhibits at the university, high school symphonic choir, and a terrific county fair with prestigious harness racing. The contrast makes Delaware a special place to be, to live and to work.

EDUCATION

Buckeye Valley Local Schools Career Vehicle Day

Delaware County residents and business people have education choices for their families, themselves and for personal and professional employee development to prepare for the work place today and tomorrow. There are many alternatives and they are all close by! Personal growth, professional development and public or private education is available and affordable for Delaware County residents and business people. From pre-K through adult, the variety of educational choices in Delaware County is plentiful.

All four public school districts in Delaware County consistently earn the highest marks on the State of Ohio report card. Collectively the four school districts sit atop all other counties in Ohio with the highest average Performance Index score. Collaboration is key according to district leaders who meet monthly to share best practices and strategize on key financial and legislative issues. All four districts are providing top-notch educational services at a cost well below the state average per pupil spending. As a result of their success, all four districts have experienced a steady increase in student enrollment.

The Delaware Area Career Center (DACC) is a leader in career technical education. The Center offers programs for high school students to apply skills to the workplace and to prepare for higher education by earning college credits. DACC joins the four school districts in earning the highest marks from the state of Ohio for student achievement and innovative programs. Adult programs prepare workers to enter, compete and advance in a challenging work environment that includes programs in Human Resources, Computer Applications, Information Systems and Public Safety.

School/community partnerships play a big role in the success of the districts. Local business leaders serve on K-12 districts' advisory panel to the superintendent and strong relationships with partner agencies, including Big Brothers/Big Sisters, United Way of Delaware County, the Delaware County District Library and Ohio Wesleyan University further enhance student opportunities and achievement.

The Delaware campus of Columbus State Community College serves about 900 students per quarter. The 80,000 square foot, $25 million structure has video conferencing capabilities and includes 22 classrooms, two science laboratories and a computer lab. Many degrees are offered, including the Associate of Arts and Associate of Science, representing the first two years of a bachelor's degree. Stand-alone two-year degrees also are available in Business Management and Computer Information Technology.

And in the county to the north of Delaware is Marion Technical College. MTC offers more than 50 associate degree and certificate programs in the areas of business, IT, healthcare, and the arts and sciences at their state-of-the-art campus in Marion, Ohio. MTC students who want to earn a bachelor's degree can easily transfer credits to Ohio's four-year colleges and universities after graduating from MTC with a two-year degree. MTC has formal transfer agreements with many schools, even beyond Ohio.

The Ohio State University Extension, Delaware County, offers research-based educational programming and materials. The OSU Extension partners with community leaders, officials and organizations to identify educational program opportunities that target issues faced today by the community, farm families and neighborhoods. They offer resource development and volunteer community service options through Agriculture, Horticulture, Family and Consumer Sciences and Community Development, Natural Resources and 4-H programs.

Ohio Wesleyan University (OWU) is a small, selective, national liberal arts university, with a long-standing tradition of academic rigor, travel-learning and hands-on experiences tied to the curriculum. The university provides the business community a source of student interns who are eager to gain practical experience that complements their fields of study. The Woltemade Center for Economics, Business & Entrepreneurship offers free lectures, including the annual Economic Outlook Conference, that help local businesses keep up to date with important trends. Education and development choices continue to grow in Delaware County and that is good for business!

PARKS & RECREATION

Residents and businesses have a variety of year-round recreation choices in Delaware County. In the City of Delaware parks serve the entire community: Mingo Park, Blue Limestone Park, Smith Park. Dozens of smaller parks enhance neighborhoods, using natural space to balance built-up areas. These parks are located so every neighborhood will have green space within walking distance. Spray and Play, a splash pad and activity area at Veterans Park, includes the splash pad, a Jurassic-themed play area, amphitheater, concessions and shelters. The free activity center is located on the campus of the Community Center YMCA.

All communities in the county continue to work with developers to install and extend walking paths and a bikeway network. Where possible, these are laid out along natural corridors and connectors. A multi-use bikeway network offers residents recreational opportunities and a transportation alternative for getting around a growing county. Positive results include reducing dependence on motor vehicles, saving gasoline and improving air quality— not to mention good exercise!

Delaware County has large recreational venues. Highbanks Metro Park provides exceptional nature and hiking trails; Alum Creek State Park, Delaware State Park, Hoover Reservoir and the O'Shaughnessy Reservoir offer boating, fishing and camping.

Preservation Parks of Delaware County is a network of eleven parks preserving green space and providing environmental education. Preservation Parks is committed to preserving Delaware County's natural areas, which are home to thousands of native plant and animal species and are special places for people. The parks allow visitors to experience an intimacy with nature that is unique from other parks in the area, inserting quietude and harmony into a busy world, and providing unexpected moments of discovery and connection. Plant and animal habitats welcome visitors with vivid color and sound, awakening the senses. The tranquility makes the parks even more special.

Park District conservation efforts focus on land acquisition, prairie and wetland restoration, reforestation and invasive species management in an effort to improve wildlife habitat. Walking trails, picnic areas, reservable shelters, natural play areas, nature displays, wildlife blinds, and other features provide a variety of ways for visitors to enjoy the parks. A wide range of programs strengthen people's awareness and understanding of the landscape, wildlife, resources and history of their home county.

Olentangy Caverns, a network of caves formed millions of years ago by the relentless action of an underground river holds evidence the Wyandot Indians used them for a safe haven from enemies. Visitors descend 105 feet to explore an amazing world where the temperature is a constant 54 degrees!

The Columbus Zoo and Aquarium is another favorite. The complex includes the Zoo, Safari Golf Course and Zoombezi Bay Water Park and is a premier destination. The Zoo, ranked number one in the United States, has earned a worldwide reputation largely through the leadership of Director Emeritus Jack Hanna. Some two million people annually visit to see seven thousand animals and fish representing hundreds of species.

Highlights of the Columbus Zoo's African Safari include raised platforms that allow visitors to hand-feed giraffes and a watering hole that attracts animals for close-range viewing during various times of the day. The goal was for unobstructed views of the giraffes as well as lions, zebras, monkeys, cheetahs, warhogs and guinea fowl.

No wonder AARP awarded Delaware a "Livable Community" designation based on the quality of life it provides! In the parks and recreation sector, Delaware County has it all with golf, boating, caving, camping, water-sliding, and, of course, "lions, tigers and bears" at the number one zoo in the United States!

HEALTHCARE

Ohio Living Sarah Moore Celebrates 130 Years

Delaware families, businesses and their employees have many health care choices: individual practitioners, clinics and a hospital offering a wide range of services in town or close by through health network connections. Chiropractic and wellness services, providers in skilled and extended care, home care, and assisted living, plus dentists and optometrists, are among those available to serve a variety of health care, vision, hearing and related needs.

Growth in the senior population creates a demand for a wide range of health care needs and options. Active seniors will enjoy programs, services and social life with SourcePoint. There are companies and programs that provide in-home assistance and care for a few hours or longer, lending an ear or a helping hand. Residential facilities offer a variety of prices and services, including independent, assisted living and skilled nursing care. For seniors with Alzheimer's or dementia or who have reached a stage where hospice care is needed, in-home services are available, as well as at several convenient sites in the county.

Families and individuals find the location and hours of the urgent care facilities throughout the county convenient, with preventative services, examinations, on-the-job injury treatment, and an on-site pharmacy.

Care for health issues related to hearing, speech development and the eyes are available in across the county. Routine eye examinations, LASIK procedures, early identification of glaucoma and macular degeneration, treatment of dry eye, eyewear selection and contact lenses are services close to home. Persons needing audiology and/or speech pathology procedures will find a full array of attention and treatment.

Delaware County helps residents meet many of their health care needs through the Delaware Public Health District offices and their neighborhood health centers. Child immunizations are available on a sliding fee scale. Adults and children receive health services, nutrition counseling and many other services. The Health District also is responsible for environmental health programs, vital statistics and data management, water and food safety, pest control and health education.

Recovery and rehabilitation facilities are well-established in Delaware County. Cardiac and trauma rehabilitation helps patients recover to their fullest potential. Equine therapy is an innovative treatment using horses as an aid in the behavioral health rehabilitation process. Several agencies and organizations have programs for alcohol and drug treatment and prevention, behavioral health care, resources for educators, and detoxification. Grady Memorial Hospital has a hometown feel with a long reach as a member of the OhioHealth network. This affiliation gives Grady access to a broad array of services and programs, providing a complete continuum of care for patients. Delaware residents have access to more than 200 physicians and 34 specialty areas available at the hospital. Patients will find cardiac services, a gender knee replacement program, and emergency department performance levels that they might expect from a larger institution.

Grady's accreditation as a Chest Pain Center brings a multi-disciplinary approach to treatment of heart patients. The hospital is approved as a clinical trial site for cancer studies, an advantage for Delaware patients participating in the Cancer Services program. Grady expanded access to services through the Delaware Medical Campus, while maintaining its commitment to the present location. The Delaware Health Center services the community with medical imaging, laboratory and primary care services, as well as a breast center, cancer treatment care and other specialty medical office space.

The Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center brings nationally recognized, leading-edge medical care to Lewis Center, in the southern end of the county. OSU Wexner Center Lewis Center combines a variety of outpatient health services in a single location, right in the Delaware community – offering compassionate care delivered with the same level of quality and personalized attention found at The Ohio State University Wexner Medical Center. Services range from routine such as primary care and X-rays to specialized expertise in sports medicine, pediatrics, cardiovascular medicine, ear, nose and throat, orthopedics, physical therapy, podiatry, rheumatology, spine and wound care.

Many of The Ohio State's Wexner Medical Center's most talented specialists and primary care physicians have transferred their practices from the Medical Center's main campus to Lewis Center, offering Delaware residents access to nationally-recognized medical expertise a little closer to home.

The Mount Carmel Health System contributes to a healthy county with their 130,000-square-foot outpatient center emphasizing fitness and wellness – complete with indoor running track and pool alongside more familiar physician offices and an urgent care center. Part of the Trinity Health System, it offers the community the latest in fitness equipment, an indoor track, group exercise studios and a comprehensive aquatics program, including a competitive lap pool. Included are common areas and community space for meetings, a demonstration kitchen for healthy cooking classes, a healthy food café and a spa. And should you ever get sick, the campus also features an emergency department, primary care and specialty physician offices, and lab and imaging services right on site.

In collaboration with OhioHealth, Nationwide Children's Hospital opened a 70,000 square foot outpatient healthcare facility in Lewis Center. The facility brings specialized pediatric experts provided via medical professionals dedicated solely to the provision of pediatric healthcare services. Nationwide Children's portion of the facility includes radiology, developmental therapies, laboratory services and pediatric specialty clinics. As it does in other communities around central Ohio, OhioHealth provides adult services including imaging, MRI, laboratory, primary care, specialty care and rehabilitation.

Healthcare in Delaware is not limited to people, but includes “man's best friend” as well. Quality veterinary services are located throughout Delaware. Those seeking treatment for their pets will find full-service care facilities offering in-house blood work, dental, surgery including laser technology, urgent care, day school for dogs and extended stay for canines, felines and exotics. Caring, committed and compassionate veterinarians are close to home and are available to help create mutually healthy relationships between owners and their pets.

What is the prognosis for Delaware County's health care? Continued positive accessibility, affordability, convenience, selection and technology integration!

Main Street Delaware Shop Local Promotion

Delaware County has shopping styles that meet all needs and interests. Convenience, choice and style describe the variety available. The Downtown Delaware shopping district invites visitors to explore tree-lined streets and discover shops in historic brick buildings. Pop in and out of the home decor, antique and specialty shops in Shawnee Hills, along Powell's main street and in Sunbury's village square.

The Polaris Fashion Mall and Polaris Towne Center at Interstate 71 and Powell Road is an area bursting with retail, restaurants and hotels. The mall has become a destination shopping site with upscale retailers, over 150 stores, including six anchors, and eating establishments. Shoppers will find restaurants, grocery stores, family fun centers, free-standing restaurants and a wide range of service outlets and specialty stores.

Downtown Delaware provides today's merchandise and services with yesterday's charm. The streetscape and storefronts recall another time but the stores are just as up-to-date as the cars lining the busy streets. Enjoy coffee, shop in one of several boutique clothing stores, or join the growing IPA culture. Find the unusual and the unique downtown. Delaware has become a dining destination within Central Ohio with its concentration of unique, one-of-a-kind restaurants and taverns.

Nearby Powell is known for its antique and home décor shops. Shawnee Hills has a number of merchants with items that will catch the eye. Sunbury's Village Square invites visitors to park and browse the antique and specialty stores on the square and nearby streets. Each town and village has fairs, market days and other events such as Delaware's "First Fridays." These events attract crafts, artisans and retailers with opportunities to find that perfect gift. The items offered and the feelings evoked in any of the downtown and village shopping areas are very different from the "big box" shopping, making the small-scale shopping experience special.

Each of the communities can boast live music in cozy taverns and Downtown Delaware is home to the Strand Theatre. The Strand, at over 100 years old, is one of the few remaining, continuously open, first-run movies theatre in the nation.

Choose the pace that suits every preference: the selection and the atmosphere of the mall's crowds with all the noise and hustle; a quick trip to pick up something quickly in one of many shopping hubs; or enjoy the more leisurely pace offered in the downtown areas throughout Delaware County. All combine to give Delaware County a rich set of choices without having to go far.

There are great choices in Delaware and they are all close by!

BANKING, FINANCE & INSURANCE

Individuals and institutions will find a range of financial assistance and solutions in Delaware County to meet their needs. It's all here and much of the financial sector still has a hometown feel. Business no longer is as easy as an agreement or a handshake, but dependable connections are in Delaware, too.

Several institutions in this sector have roots going back decades, but even though there's lots of tradition, there's also today's technology and communication. Today, the names are updated and the array of choices seem as abundant as the Delaware County crops.

There are many categories under the financial services umbrella: banks, insurance agencies, savings and loans, credit unions, accounting firms, financial planners, and investment management firms. Delaware area banks have every product expected in a competitive market.

The insurance agencies in Delaware County insure a vast array of products from farm property to IRAs. Several of the agents specialize in health care insurance, a complicated and changing sector.

Accounting firms fill a niche for auditing, accounting, payroll and bookkeeping. Their services include mergers, acquisitions and sales, financial and retirement planning, estate and trust planning and financial and retirement planning. Some investment firms that focus on individual investors handle a similar range of services plus savings programs and investor education. Others offer expertise in corporate investments with equity-related plans, fixed-income resources, pooled products, insurance, cash management, investment and advisory services.

The financial market is aggressive, competitive, and consumer-driven. There is a wealth of information available to get a great deal. Do the research, then walk in and talk to the local banker or financial institution representative. Don't be surprised at the neighbor-to-neighbor atmosphere.

BUSINESS, INDUSTRY & COMMERCE

Location, location, location! The adage of the relationship between success and location holds true with economic development in Delaware County. Situated just north of the state's capital in Columbus, Delaware County is centrally located with easy access to both rural and urban areas, several airports, railways and major interstate highways.

Delaware County is also part of the 11-county Columbus Region, one of the most dynamic and diverse metropolitan areas in the United States. Central Ohio is known for its talented workforce and great market access, and is considered a great value for each dollar invested.

Delaware County has been the strong pulse of Ohio's economy. Location, infrastructure, and workforce; large tracts of reasonably-priced land, proximity to highway and rail transportation networks, utilities, plus government collaboration attract and retain business; all factors that contribute to a continued positive business climate in Delaware County. And it doesn't hurt that the county is located within 600 miles of two-thirds of the U.S. population. Delaware has been the fastest growing county in Ohio and is the 22nd fastest growing county in the United States. Delaware County's population growth over the past several decades has transformed the county. The county's estimated 2020 population of over 205,000 is almost four times the 53,840 in 1980. Projections put the 2040 population at nearly 300,000.

The City of Delaware's location favors business development. Seventy percent of the county's manufacturing capacity is in the city's two industrial parks, Johnson Industrial Park and Delaware Industrial Park. Orange Point Industrial Park and Sunbury Commerce Park, on the south and east ends of the county respectively, are located on major highways. These parks are ideal for distribution centers and manufacturing. The current mix of manufacturing includes disposable diapers at one site, custom hydraulics and cylinders at another, hoists and rigging for suspended work platforms at a third.

Most of these companies have a global reach. One manufactures color concentrates and another makes resistance-welding electrodes and accessories, both for global distribution. The headquarters of a world leader in containerboard production is within a few miles of the city. A nearby Japanese-owned company makes automotive shock absorbers and power steering unit components, also for customers around the world. The Distribution Center sector also is broad-based, from high-performance automotive parts to food and produce.

The entrepreneurial spirit continues to take root in Delaware County and nowhere do those roots run deeper than Ohio Wesleyan University and its partnerships with the business community. Forbes magazine ranks Ohio Wesleyan as the No. 1 entrepreneurial college in Ohio, and 17th in the nation. The Delaware Entrepreneurial Center is a first-of-its-kind collaboration among OWU, Delaware County, and the City of Delaware creating a business incubator and education center on the OWU campus. The center provides assistance and student-interns for beginning entrepreneurs. The Carol Latham Entrepreneurial Scholars Program is creating the next generation of business trailblazers. The 2-year program helps students in any major develop their own entrepreneurial venture. The Corns Business and Entrepreneurial Scholars Program encourages and nurtures the business and entrepreneurial ambitions of Ohio Wesleyan students. Corns Scholars combine classroom knowledge with the spontaneity of daily business applications and challenges, putting them a step ahead in the business world with future employers.

From HVAC to marketing, lawn care to digital management, automotive sales and service, products and services are born and flourish in Delaware. With the holistic view and guidance of strong, experienced economic development leaders at all municipal levels, the endorsement of the governing bodies, and the support of organizations like the chambers of commerce, Delaware County's arms are open to business.

AGRICULTURE & HORTICULTURE

Traditional farming continues to be a strong part of the Delaware County economy. According to the Ohio County Profiles website, 53 percent of county land is in cropland and pasture land. There are 720 farms with an average size of 182 acres. The total land production of approximately 131,000 acres is predominantly crop farms, most of which produce corn, soybeans, wheat and hay. Annual cash receipts from crop farming are approximately $79 million.

Nine Delaware County farms are registered with the Ohio Department of Agriculture as Century Farms, in the same family for 100 years or more. One family has been on the same land since 1814.

Livestock farming is a significant part of the agriculture picture. Ohio is the second-largest producer of lambs east of the Mississippi and Delaware County contributes in a big way. Delaware County farmers also raise hogs and cattle and sheep.

Nursery products in the horticulture sector are another notable segment with nearly $22 million in annual sales.

Both agriculture and horticulture businesses drive a second tier of business. For example, livestock farms buy materials for enclosures, purchase feed and use veterinary services. Crop farmers buy seed and plants and they carefully employ agricultural chemicals, fertilizer lime and soil conditioners. Crop farmers and horticulturists have a substantial investment in trucks, tractors, other self-propelled machinery, and auxiliary equipment. And everyone needs fuel and maintenance.

The Ohio State University Extension office supports agriculture and horticulture with a mission to bring the resources of the university to the county. Extension programs help landowners and farmers manage their property, finding ways to improve land production and efficiency while protecting the environment.

The future of the agriculture and horticulture sector is shaped by several development programs. Through the Delaware Area Career Center, high school students can learn skills and explore interests in Equine Science, Environmental Technologies, Landscape and Turf Management and the Columbus Zoo and Aquarium's Zoo School. Future Farmers of America prepares young people for leadership and careers in the science, business and technology of agriculture. Middle school students can join FFA and continue through college. FFA agricultural education programs have grown to encompass all facets of agriculture from production farming, agribusiness and forestry to biotechnology, marketing and food processing.

4-H is a national education program for youth and in Delaware County there are 75 clubs involving 1,200 young people ages five to 19. About 320 adult volunteers give over 15,000 hours annually to guide the program and teach life skills in leadership, decision making and communication skills through project work. Projects include raising livestock, training pets, making clothing, growing plants and even making model rockets. Project literature is prepared by The Ohio State University Extension faculty.

With traditional agriculture holding steady, horticulture has emerged in the market. This is the science and art of growing fruits, vegetables, flowers or ornamental plants, and also includes landscaping, lawn care, gardening, nursery, turf grass and tree care. The county boasts several nursery and greenhouse businesses that grow, sell, educate and beautify both residential and commercial property.

Price Farms Organics provides Central Ohio residents and businesses the opportunity to recycle organic materials and to produce the highest quality compost, soil and mulch products available. Through advanced composting techniques, they turn materials otherwise destined for a landfill into a valuable product for yard and garden.

Why is this sector growing? The answer is quality of life in Delaware County. Beautification creates a positive impression of the community. Beautification is furthered by the Master Gardener program managed by the OSU Extension office. The Master Gardener Volunteer Program provides intensive training in horticulture to interested Ohio residents who then volunteer their time assisting with educational programs and activities for Ohio residents through their local OSU Extension county office.

What's the trend and the future in agriculture and horticulture? Think organics with increased composting as the collection and transportation details are worked out. Also agritainment, where traditional farms and horticulture outlets partner with the urban dwellers to give a taste of the country worlds. Think corn mazes, hayrides, pumpkin patches, berry picking, farm festivals and haunted barns at Halloween!

CONTACT US TODAY FOR ALL YOUR COMMERCIAL CONSTRUCTION NEEDS!

OUR SERVICES

Commercial Construction

Our experience leads us to provide specified construction phases for all types of projects from private design build to public bid projects.

Design Build

By coordinating directly with our internal project design team, we can combine our value engineering design, management, and field expertise to maximize communication, minimize confusion, and keep your entire project within budget.

Metal Buildings

We offer a wide range of Metal Building options from multiple suppliers that helps achieve the required budget for your project. We can provide furnish and erect, turnkey operation, or just simply supply you with the design and material.

WHY CHOOSE US

At DBS, we aim to be visionaries, while disrupting the construction industry. We look to the future with every project, making constant improvements along the way. Whether it's a Design Build Project from ground up, or renovation, we have made it our mission to be at the forefront of the industry using our key tenants: Innovation, Collaboration, Efficiency, Value, Service.

A Vision Lead Company

DELAWARE BUILDING SYSTEMS

Delaware Building Systems specializes in commercial projects for clients throughout Ohio and beyond. Let us help bring your project to life!

WHAT WE DO

DBS has provided an internal culture which helps not only our employees, but the customer to have a memorable experience throughout the entire project. We pride ourselves on being an empowering presence to build relationships with our clients that last a lifetime.

Ohio Living

Sarah Moore

Retirement living shouldn't feel like a roll of the dice. It should feel like you hit the jackpot.

Whether you could use a little assistance with day-to-day tasks, need help recovering after a hospitalization or surgery, or are looking for more comprehensive long-term care, Ohio Living Sarah Moore has you covered.

Our convenient location in historic Delaware offers easy access to restaurants and entertainment, while you can also enjoy restaurant-style dining, a library, courtyard, and activity lounges right here on campus. With our caring, experienced staff, and housekeeping and laundry services included, you'll feel like you've won the greatest prize of all – the retirement you've always dreamed of.
